TWO MURDERS

Injuries, attempting to leave the inference that he crushed his skull in a fall. But they fail to account for the man getting such a fall and walking out of the house to hang over the porch railing where he was allowed to remain for an hour or more.

The coroner in describing the affair said that Brookman had Bailey down and was kneeling over the prostrate man, pinning him when he, Bailey, and Stedley seized him from behind and pulled him away, and that he was then put out of the house and fell across the porch railing.

It is the contention of the authorities that while Brookman was kneeling over Bailey, Stedley or some other person struck him on the head with a chair, causing the fatal crushing of his skull, and he was then thrown out of the house and landed over the porch rail where he hung and died.

County Coroner Dr. J. I. Pollum, of DuBois, came to Clearfield today and began an investigation into the killing. After looking the ground over, the coroner summoned a jury and is taking testimony this afternoon in an attempt to locate the perpetrator of the deed.

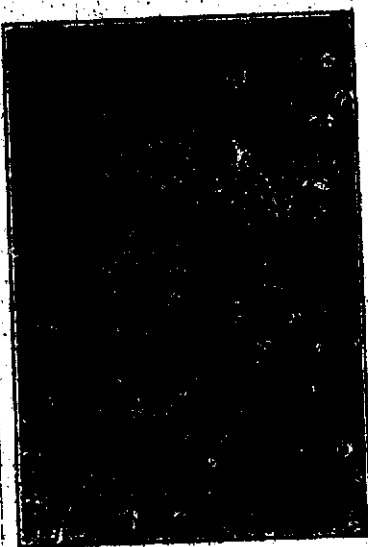

What She Promised

A young bride, called to a June wedding the other day, and they fell to talking of the ceremony they had so recently pronounced. "Did you promise me love, honor and obey?" asked the June bride. "I don't remember," replied the girl who was wed in January. "But I think I should have promised to love, honor and obey."

WIL OPEN 18TH YEAR OF SERVICE AS MUSIC SCHOOL

The Susquehanna College of Music will open its doors for the eighteenth year on Tuesday, September 3rd for what looks to be one of the most successful years in the history of the institution. The registration thus far shows that more interest is being taken in music and Prof. H. Clark Thayer, under whose capable direction this institution of music learning has grown to be one of the section's leading temples of musical learning, states that the outlook for the coming year is exceedingly bright.

The faculty this year will be composed of H. Clark Thayer, Prof. Edgar W. Schaeffer, Mrs. Jessie Thayer or Schaeffer and Anna Way in the musical departments.

A new instructor has been engaged for the Department of Natural Expression at a great cost. Violet Williams Duffy, a teacher of elocution of national repute has been engaged for this line of work and comes to the school very highly recommended. Graduating from the education department of the Indiana Normal School and Grove City College, Mrs. Duffy took an extension course with special attention to story telling, 65 dramatic art and public speaking at the Shoemaker School of Elocution under the celebrated Madame Vandergrift one of the foremost teachers of expression in the country. Following this course Mrs. Duffy studied under Blanche Shattuck at the Gurry School of Expression at Boston. This founded an education in the art of natural expression which has brought honor and a country-wide reputation.

For one season Mrs. Duffy was story teller and instructor of pageantry for the Redpath Chautauqua where she won for herself the highest praise from the management as one of the most popular Junior Chautauqua directors on the Redpath circuit. Following this year of Chautauqua work Mrs. Duffy was engaged for some time as director of physical education and organized recreation for the National Recreation Association of America, gaining a wide experience in welfare work and teaching young and old America how to play. Following this Mrs. Duffy will have to offer the following course: public speaking, after dinner speaking, toasts and a general help for the purpose of making a raid on an alleged moonshiner. Arriving at Kersey, the officers sought information regarding the whereabouts of the man wanted from Kersey. The Spaniard readily assented to pointing out the place; apparently, and told Corporal Jones to accompany him down an alley. When in the dark alley, according to Jones, the Spaniard suddenly drew his 32 revolver, yelled "hands up," and fired twice. Neither bullet took effect in the officer, and the trooper, drawing his own gun, fired five shots in rapid succession, felling the Spaniard.

How Twice Breaths

Every work of a twig has a meaning in the life of a tree, says Nature Magazine. The tiny dots scattered hither and over the twigs are its breathing pores. Day and night, winter and summer, the tree breathes in oxygen and gives off carbon dioxide. The great work of sifting and summer requires much additional breathing space which the leaves furnish.

Meaning of "Hague"

In the old language Hague means bridge. The name of the capital, therefore, is The Bridge given to the spot centuries ago when it was a hunting lodge of the counts of Holland. The Dutch people, or more properly the Hollanders, have a great liking for ornamental bridges.

PASTEURIZED MILK MAKES HUSKY KIDDIES

There's something in this pasteurized milk that makes kiddies brainier and huskier from the first day they start with it as the main article of their diet. There is everything in the milk that will make them stronger, and with the surety that no disease germs can be absorbed by the system from the milk.

The pasteurization process takes out ALL the germs that lurk in milk and the milk comes to your table even purer than when it first came from the cows.

Be sure that the milk you give your kiddies is pasteurized.

STATE TROOPER FORCED TO KILL ELK COUNTY MAN.

St. Marys, Pa., Aug. 27.—A Spaniard by the name of Cersena was shot and almost instantly killed on Saturday evening at Kersey as the prelude to an intended bootlegging raid by state police from St. Marys. The shooting was done by Corporal Jones of the St. Marys detail, and according to the facts learned was entirely in self defense, Cersena having first drawn a gun and fired it twice at the officer before he drew his revolver. The state trooper fired a total of five shots in rapid succession, and the Spaniard fell over dead.

While Corporal Jones did not wish to discuss the shooting previous to the holding of the inquest. It was learned that he and Private Dunwith, accompanied by a constable, went to Kersey, about 8 miles from St. Marys for the purpose of making a raid on an alleged moonshiner. Arriving at Kersey, the officers sought information regarding the whereabouts of the man wanted from Kersey. The Spaniard readily assented to pointing out the place; apparently, and told Corporal Jones to accompany him down an alley. When in the dark alley, according to Jones, the Spaniard suddenly drew his 32 revolver, yelled "hands up," and fired twice. Neither bullet took effect in the officer, and the trooper, drawing his own gun, fired five shots in rapid succession, felling the Spaniard.

The shooting took place about 10 o'clock. An inquest will be held today at which time the blame for the shooting will be placed. According to the facts adduced, the officer in self defense.

DREAM SCARED LAD; TELLS MOTHER CHUM KILLED PLAYMATE

Providence, R. I., Aug. 24.—Eight-year-old Antonio Testa of this city said "the shadow" of Michael Lurgio, 9 years old, in a dream last night and told his mother that Henri Rossi, 13 years old, had shot the Lurgio boy and buried him in a hole just over the Providence line in the town of Johnston on Tuesday afternoon. Police men, however, found the body of the boy, who had been reported missing since Tuesday.

The Real boy admitted the shooting, but said he did not know the double barreled shotgun, left by his father in a shack was loaded. He said, according to police: "We were playing and Mike stood in the doorway. I pulled the trigger and it went off. It hit him in the left breast and he fell over. Then I was afraid my father would beat me for having kids around the shack, so we buried him."

The Testa boy said young Rossi made him promise not to tell. He kept the secret until he was awakened by a dream last night and then told his mother.

PEASANT GAP FISH HATCHERY TO BE ENLARGED

The State fish hatchery at Peasant Gap, is to be enlarged to increase its annual output 40 per cent. Work on a large new building is now under way, ground having been broken several days ago.

N. R. Duller, State Commissioner of Fisheries, who was at the Peasant Gap hatchery the other night, said that the plans under way provide for so enlarging the hatchery as to make it one of the largest in the east. Natural conditions there for propagating and developing brook and brown trout, stated Commissioner Duller are better for a large, modern hatchery than may be found in most sections.

The present output of the hatchery is from 600,000 to 800,000 one-year-old brook and brown trout. With the completion of the proposed new propagating and developing building the annual output will be increased to a minimum of 1,300,000 each year. This may be advanced to 1,500,000 a year.

Announcement of Commissioner

Buller's plans will be hailed with delight by sportsmen. It means more fish for the streams in Centre County and elsewhere. Phillipsburg will no doubt share a little more generously.

Seven Points of Supremacy

1. The shoe built on "FOOT-FITTERS" is of the best quality obtainable. It is the latest style and from standard pattern leather.
2. "FOOT-FITTERS" are the only shoes in the world having full length vamp and sole leather last. This feature prevents slipping at the tip and makes a smooth outer and inner surface.
3. The handle and shoulder channelled so that they fit tightly against the foot. There is no need or room for a cork filler. A small piece of cork is used to prevent squeaking.
4. The Clasp's inside pocket is of great value, for it saves the wear on the sock. There is no need to rub against.
5. "FOOT-FITTERS" last 1/2 inch longer than generally used. They give additional support to the foot and increase the comfort and wear of the shoe.
6. The vamp is separated from the sole. This absorbs the moisture from the foot, this keeps the shoe from cracking and holds the shoe in shape.
7. "FOOT-FITTERS" shoes are called "FOOT-FITTERS" because they fit the foot. The combination lasts they support the foot like a doctor's bandage. "FOOT-FITTERS" give comfort, service and appearance.

POINCARE, WORLD'S MOST IMPORTANT MAN TODAY, PUZZLES EUROPE WITH HIS POKER FACE

By MILTON BRONNER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

Paris Aug. 25.—Who's the most important person in the world?

All Europe makes the same answer—smilingly or frowningly, proudly or profanely, as the case may be:

"Raymond Poincare!"

Upon this little 68-year-old bearded Frenchman—whose beard seems queerly to droop and bristle at the same time—world eyes are focused.

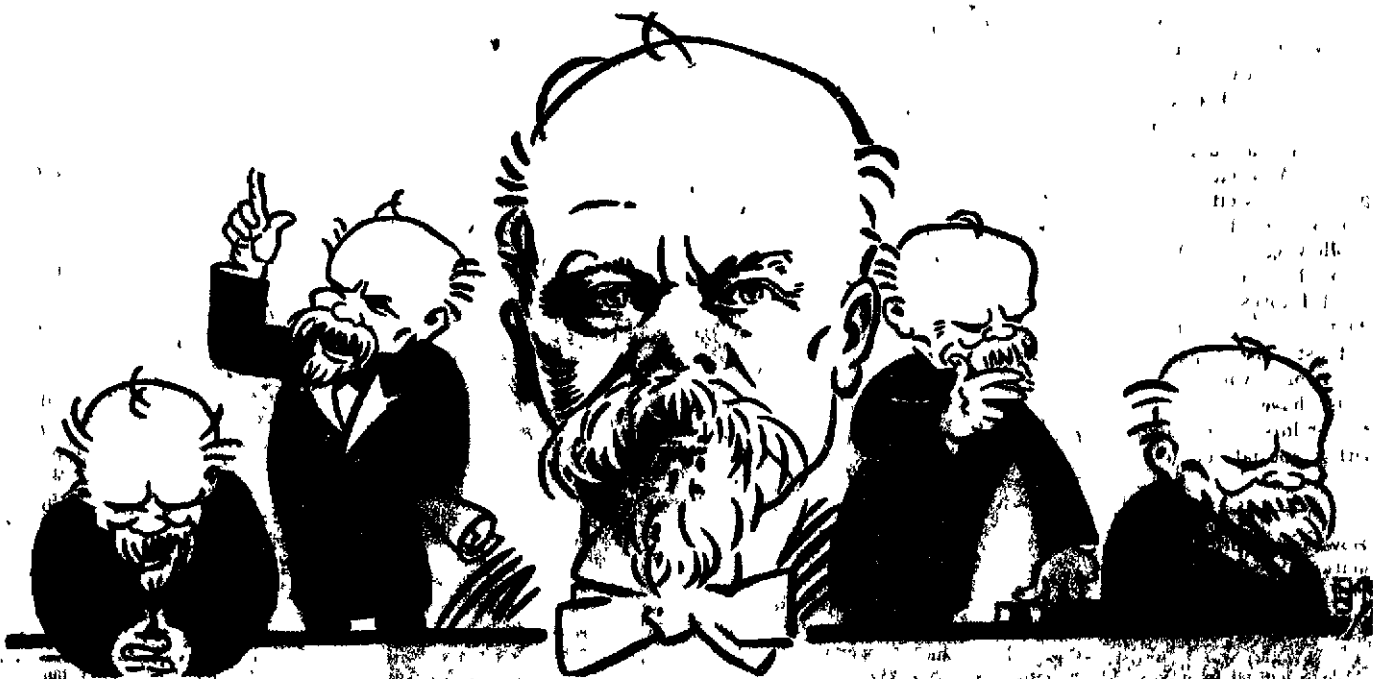

Some say he will be Europe's salvation; others say he will be Europe's damnation. But they all agree that he's the man to be reckoned with, the man who sits in the world's greatest gambling game with a "pat" hand and a "poker face."

Largely, writer and master politician, this prime minister of France by virtue of France's strategic position, its army and its air fleet governs Europe.

"If Poincare remains in office," they tell you in Paris, "every government in Europe—and America, too—will have to reckon with him. If he falls from power his fall will have the effect of a quiet revolution in France that will have echoes all over Europe. They hate him in Germany, and they hate him in England."

What next from Poincare?

This is the way an observer in London answers the question:

ARTIST YATES' IMPRESSION OF PREMIER POINCARE IN ACTION

"If Europe is a powder barrel, Poincare is the man who is playing with a lighted match. If Germany is full of open wounds, it is Poincare who is poking them to keep them open. If England is really trying to bring peace on the continent, it is Poincare who bars the way. If France actually has the practicable plan, it is Poincare who is expected to point the way."

Poincare—whose policies are the despair of the rest of Europe and his whiskers the delight of caricaturists here and abroad—is highly explosive both as an orator and a writer. He proved it when he was trying to bring down the Briand cabinet.

Then, called to power, he had to act or swallow his words. He acted. He took France into the Ruhr. And he has just announced he won't get out.

He is the most nicknamed person in French politics. Clemenceau is "the Tiger." But the list for Poincare begins with the well-known "Poincare-la-Guerre"—Poincare-the-war. Meaning, of course, that he helped bring about the war which began in 1914. Only the other day one of the publications bitterly opposed to him called him:

"Poincare Poincare, Poincaruhr, Poincarit."

The "roff" refers to his bringing about the close political and military alliance between France and Russia of the czars. "Ruhr," of course, refers to a charge that not long ago, when making one of his numerous speeches in a war graveyard, he laughed. Friends explained that it wasn't really a laugh; that the sun got in his eyes and caused him to grin.

Born in 1856, son of a government official, educated for the bar, Poincare had a long and distinguished career in the chamber of deputies and afterwards in the French Senate. He was president of the republic during the war and is now premier. Supported in the main by the bulk of the Parisian press, he is nevertheless the object of sharp attacks. He has been described as "made for war, made by war."

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. B. G.

Members of the American Legion, department of Pennsylvania, will be glad to know that the membership of the state is now close to the 50,000 mark. Although Department Commander William B. Reilly has not been able to fulfill his ambition of 100,000 legion members in this state, he has done much to keep Pennsylvania as one of the leading states of the national organization.

Every qualified voter in Pennsylvania may take part in the fall primary and subsequent primaries and elections if those who are disqualified, away from home on election days, avail themselves of the right to vote by mail provided by the recent legislature in the passage of the Womer absent voters' bill.

The absent voters' registration law providing for registration in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Scranton, also was amended by providing that the husband or wife of the person who is engaged in the state or federal government's work and who is unable to get to his or her voting home to register, may have the same privilege of registering by mail as the person employed.

The absent voters' bill provides that any qualified voter unavoidably away from home on election day and outside the county in which he is an elector, but in the United States, may vote by appearing before a person authorized to administer oaths. The voting privilege is confined to those electors and questions upon which he would be entitled to vote in his own election district.

Application for an absent voter's ballot must be made not more than thirty nor less than three days preceding an election. Application for a certificate of qualification and ballot is made to the county commissioners either in person or by mail. The certificate gives the voter's name, address, ward or district and with the exception of those who reside in country districts, must state that the voter is lawfully registered.

Upon receipt of the ballot and certificate the voter is to appear before an official authorized to administer oaths, display the ballot to show that it is unmarked and mark it in the presence of the official, who, however, is not permitted to see how the ballot is voted.

The ballot and affidavit accompanying it are sent to the prothonotary and county commissioners of the voter's resident county and must reach them on or before election day. They are placed in a separate ballot box and not opened until the official count starts.

NEW FORD FOR 1924 NOW ON DISPLAY AT ALL FORD AGENCIES

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 27.—Introduction of a higher radiator, bringing new and improved body lines to all types of Ford cars, is announced today by the Ford Motor Company.

The changes have just gone into effect and the various types are now in production.

While the larger radiator has been made standard on all types and while it has made possible other betterments in body design, there is no radical departure in construction, but rather a general improvement which has resulted in more graceful lines.

The new radiator sets an inch and a half higher than the former and has an apron at the bottom which joins a similar apron effect of the fender on either side, giving a highly finished appearance to the front of the car. The larger radiator also increases cooling efficiency.

Most conspicuous among the new types is the Ford coupe which is of entirely new body design and construction, resulting in a more trim exterior appearance, more comfortable seating arrangement and a greater luggage carrying capacity.

From the top there is a graceful sweep in the bowl to the radiator, bringing a pleasing effect to the front. The doors are wide and open forward making access and exit easy. They are heavily framed for rigidity and strength. The compartment at the rear has been enlarged to afford increased carrying capacity. The gasoline tank is under the seat, with divided cushions to afford easy filling of the tank from the right side, making it unnecessary for the driver to leave his seat. Ventilator in the cow and a visor over the windshield add much to the attractiveness of the car. A new rear fender of more sturdy character also is a feature.

Interior features are of choice material and the act are punishable by a fine of $5,000 or imprisonment not exceeding two years or both.

terial and the arrangement of the deeply cushioned seat has been effected so that at the rear there is a small recess shelf for carrying parcels. The rear vision window is much larger and oblong in shape. Door windows have been equipped with revolving type window regulators and door locks are provided. Side windows are equipped with the lever type window lifters.

Marked, too, is the improvement in the four door sedan. Highly popular since its introduction a year ago, because of its low, graceful lines, the car now presents even much better lines and a sturdier appearance.

This has been brought about by the installation of an entirely new cow with a graceful sweep from the dash blending into the larger hood and radiator. The change also affords an increase in leg room for occupants of the front seat.

In the open types, the touring car and runabout, the cow has been enlarged and flows to a graceful curve to the higher hood.

The result brings a most pleasing effect to the exterior appearance of both types. The improvement in the touring car which came when the one man top and waiting windshield were introduced, is greatly enhanced by the larger radiator, the car appearing lower and more attractive than ever. The effect on the roadster is likewise most appealing, giving it a more rugged and sturdy appearance.

The new radiator also is extended to the Ford truck chassis, affording improved appearance and better cooling to delivery services.

These new Ford types and the generally recognized performance ability of the Ford under all motoring conditions, promise to bring a greater demand than ever before as the public becomes more fully acquainted with the higher standards and greater values which have been incorporated. No changes are contemplated in prices.—(Adv.)

Political Paragraphs

ODELL HAUSER'S COLUMN

Last week was the week in Pennsylvania politics in which matters had to step aside for local matters. Before the week was over the counties were definitely embarked on their political campaigns for office, with consequent bearing on local leadership and control.

Tuesday of last week, as almost every school child must know by this time, was the last day on which nomination petitions for local office could be filed. On that day every county had its completed list of those who were eligible to imamate names as upon the altar of public service. Anyone not on the list was deprived of that privilege.

But that, of course, was not the whole story. It may have been the whole story in counties where there was no party within the parties and the county organizations could nominate their choices without interference or opposition from anybody.

Unfortunately—or fortunately, if you look at it that way—not every one of our sixty-seven was in that position. There were always squabbles for the local control and this year has provided no exception to the rule.

And so all was not ended on Tuesday. Besides the day which is the last for filing nominating petitions, the law recognizes a day which is the last for withdrawing petitions that have been filed. In other words, the law recognizes the right of a man to change his mind.

Among the choicest tricks of local political organizations are those which cluster about the process of causing a candidate who has filed a nominating petition to change his mind.

When there is a factional contest, each side endeavors to mask its ticket so that the other side may not be sure of the identity of its candidates and alter its own accordingly.

The masking is accomplished in several ways. Sometimes, in addition to entering the names of the men and women it really intends to run, an organization will enter names of persons who have no intention of supporting. At other times it is achieved by the necessity of doing this by the fact that there are already candidates in the field who have gone in on opposition, hoping that in the end the organization will take up their cause.

In the good old days when the law said that candidates for any office must appear on the ballot in the alphabetical order of their names, the entering of "false" candidates was a nuisance. Since it was always recognized that the first names in a column of candidates received hundreds of votes from persons who did not know the men involved, but only knew they had to vote for so many men under that particular heading, factions would enter a candidate whose name began with one of the first letters in order to draw the so-called "bewildered" vote away from an opposition candidate whose name began with a later letter.

That was only one of the many practices of trickery which grew up about the alphabetical ordering of names on the ballot. Governor Spruel once remarked facetiously that there was a young man in his county who surely had a bright political future before him. His name, the Governor explained, was Aaron A. A. A.

The alphabetical ordering of names has been abolished by the General Assembly and the candidates now draw lots to determine their position on the ballot. That is a very practical reform and has done away with much trickery in the filing of nominating petitions.

But there is still plenty of jockeying involved in the process of battling factions straightening out their tickets after the last day for filing and before the last day for withdrawing, which was Friday. That is what the people of the counties in which there are factional battles have been hearing most about during the last part of the week. I wonder if all of them understand it?

Where there are two opposed tickets which have been masked by any of the processes alluded to, or any others, the leaders have only from Tuesday until Friday to get them clear.

It is, of course, very necessary to get them clear, for otherwise strength will be diverted from the ticket they desire to elect. If, for instance, an independent ticket is being put in the field against an organization ticket, it would be a serious matter to have some man recognized as an organization man in the field against the organization candidate for the particular office. That is because the independents would muster their full strength for one candidate while the organization strength would be divided between two candidates.

So the organization must pry out of the race any man of their own stripe who is a little fractious. It must also eliminate any other candidates except those it believes will divide the strength of the opposing side. The same principle applies in reverse to the opposition ticket.

That part is fairly simple, compared to other complications that almost always exist. There are men who file nominating petitions as a sort of political blackmail. They go in and they know the leaders will have to get them out. Then price for withdrawal is some kind of a deal which will assure them of something or other they want in the future.

Although this phase of political campaigning has been sketched only broadly, enough has been said to show the subtle complications that are present and to give a clue to those citizens who may not have understood what was at the bottom of all the political excitement they have been hearing about this week.

The first crisis came on Tuesday when, with the filing of petitions the leaders knew how successful or unsuccessful they had been in trying to shape things as they wanted up to that time. They then had three days in which they might seek to straighten out any tangles that had arisen. On Friday, when four o'clock came and those withdrew who intended to withdraw while those remained who intended to remain, the question came to an end and everyone knew exactly what names would be printed on the ballot for the Primary Elections.

From this time on the matter enters a new phase. The question of jockeying candidates is disposed of. It now becomes a question of campaign for the election of the ticket each of the factions favors. There are comparatively few counties, certainly not many of the larger ones, in which this question will not prevail from this time until primary election day on September 18th.

As far as the principal interest in state politics outside the county situation goes it appears that in the great battle of the Code, State Treasurer Snyder has lost the first round. The Dauphin County court gave its decision on Attorney-General Woodruff's action of mandamus against him and declared that he must return to the Auditor General the pay-rolls he had held up, either approving them or disapproving, and in the latter event giving his reason therefor in writing.

It is not a direct defeat because Mr. Snyder's principal object was to obtain a ruling on the constitutional validity of the Code. But he could not get that question linked into the action, the essence of the court's decision being that the Act of 1811 continued to govern and the Code had made no difference, and that under the Act of 1811 Mr. Snyder was wrong.

One cannot know whether this means the end of Mr. Snyder's attack on the Code. He has talked considerably about various injunctions he has prepared, and that sort of thing, and we may or may not hear more of them later. Auditor-General Lewis has held from the start that the Act of 1811 applied and the Code could not be brought into the question. It looks as though Mr. Snyder had better borrow Mr. Lewis' lawyers for a while.

Progress Editorial For Women

WOLVERINE COURAGE

By Florence Davies.

The wolverine, say the men who keep track of nature's ways, is making his last stand up in the western mountains. He is a fierce, white, furry creature, and whatever you may truthfully call him, Mr. Wolverine has one outstanding quality of nobility, these same nature students tell us.

He will fight to the death for his lair and his cubs.

"Bloody but unbowed." It is when everything seems dead against him that Father Wolverine will make his most gallant stand. The intrepid little fur-coated, four-footed citizen of the wilds gets his back against the wall and gives in only when death stops his breath and fixes his eyes.

Somebody has said that it is only when you do all that you can and then do more, that you come off victor in hard battles with life—that the "more" is what makes the difference between success and failure. Father Wolverine makes that exact effort. So, in spite of hunters who long to exterminate all his tribe because of his thievish propensities—sneaking the bait from their traps for instance—and in spite of dense snow drifts and scarcity of food and every other hardships that small live creatures of the mountains must face, this cousin of the badger lives on and refuses to become an extinct and forgotten member of the animal kingdom.

Rather different from the man who deserts his family every time the flutter of the stock's wings is imminent leaving the charities to look after his augmented family.

We heard the story yesterday of a little woman who must have had a bit of wolverine in her makeup, with the added virtues of fair dealing and strict honesty. She was left with two little girls and a run down farm. Did she put her children in an asylum and study the shortest route out of life as some discouraged parents have done? Not she. She studied farming instead, and increased her hay crop from 14 to 75 tons a year, with other things in proportion as time went on.

She built a new barn. She brought up and educated the little daughters. When the war brought women to the fore, she took part in Red Cross work.

Dreams of Childhood Come True When Sisters Marry Earls

MISS SARACOOK

Montreal, Aug. 25.—The last chapter of a fairy tale of childhood comes true as being written in the social registers here.

It began 15 odd years ago when two pretty little girls were playing together in the nursery of George Cook, one of Montreal's captains of finance.

A nurse had just been reading to them a tale of chivalry and romance. The children were enthralled. They dropped their dolls and playthings and listened attentively.

But finally the story ended, and the older of the sisters sighed:

"When I grow I am going to marry a soldier when he comes back from the war."

"And I shall marry a soldier, too," chimed in the younger girl, "but he must be an earl."

The older girl came back:

"Yes, I think I shall marry an earl."

The nurse smiled and repeated the story to the children's parents. They laughed and passed it up as just a dream of childhood.

But two years ago Miss Marion Cook, the older sister, startled her friends on two continents by the announcement of her engagement to the Earl of Minto.

And now comes the final rounding out of the prophecy of childhood with the engagement of the younger sister, Miss Sara Cook to the Earl of Haddington, a noble, as heroic as any character in the fairy tales.

He comes of one of the oldest families in the city of Britain. Ancestors of his have served in the army and the navy. At one time he was a three times and a father of the same time filling the highest judicial office in Scotland as Lord of the Sessions.

Both Earls fought in the great war—making them soldiers and earls just as the girls had dreamed.

AMERICAN FARM BUREAU

PRICE-FIXING BILLS OUTLINED BY SILVER

Dangers in Proposed Measures Are Vigorously Attacked.

Arbitrary governmental price-fixing for farm products is neither desirable nor necessary. Co-operative marketing, intermediate credits, warehouse receipts, and crop insurance will enable the farmer to get a proper, stable price for what he produces. By an automatic system of governmental price-fixing the minimum price would become the maximum price. The farmer would be out-traded by the other two-thirds of the population under any such scheme of governmental price guarantee. In effect the producer would become a ward of the government. The very democracy of the republic would be imperiled.

These dangers in the proposed price-fixing bills are vigorously outlined by Gray Silver, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, in a remarkable letter addressed to Senator Arthur Capper, head of the farm bloc. Mr. Silver thanks the farm bloc for the highly constructive legislation passed by the last congress to aid a prostrate agriculture, particularly the intermediate credits and warehouse acts. By adding a system of crop insurance, which he urges the next congress to provide, Mr. Silver declares that the farming industry will have a complete scheme of credits for production and marketing. By using his crop insurance policies and his warehouse receipts, the farmer could market his products co-operatively and distribute them in an orderly manner throughout the 12 consecutive months rather than dumping them on a glutted market immediately after harvest.

In his letter Mr. Silver takes note of the surplus problem. He shows that by the new credits system and co-operative marketing the farmer will have his surplus in his own hands and he will automatically plan to rid himself of the burden through balanced production.

Those who belong to the price-fixing school of thought have a laudable objective, believes the farm bureau's legislative director, but they do not consider into what serious difficulties their method would lead. It would take away the farmer's right to negotiate with the other organized groups and would place him between the upper millstone of a fixed price on what he buys and the nether millstone of a fixed price on what he sells.

Let the farmer alone to work out his economic salvation on the road which he has chosen. Help him attain his object for the good of the whole people. He will then get a just price and will have a home comparable with the home of other people, a farm equipped for efficiency, a house furnished for comfort and beauty, good roads and automobiles, education—a new day in agriculture. The nation has no greater business than to provide a strong and happy rural population.

Governmental price-fixing will not do it. The farmer's own economic program—co-operative marketing, intermediate credit, warehouse receipts, crop insurance—will.

Mr. Silver's letter in part is as follows:

"The farmer will be out-traded and put in a position where the price of his product will be fixed by the other two-thirds of the population if he permits the government to fix the price or guarantee a price on his farm commodities.

"If in addition to having to meet organized groups who price their own products were we to provide for governmental stabilization by the method proposed in any of the bills now in congress, the farmer would find himself between the arbitrary price fixed by the groups from whom he must secure the things he buys and the arbitrary price fixed by the government on the things he produces. Since he is approximately one-third of the total population, he would be in position of having his customers, the other two-thirds of our population, after pricing their own goods, sit in with him and, with their majority vote, determine at what price the farmer would sell his products to them."

Though, or the Day.

Some people get pleasure even out of disaster, if only they can say, "I told you so."

IN MEMORY OF TOLEDO DEAD

Buckeye City and County to Erect Monument to Memory of War Heroes.

A monument of "living flame," to memorialize the heroic dead of Toledo, O., and of Lucas county, is to be erected on the most prominent spot in Memorial park, a new project, which, according to founders, will soon become a reality.

Sweeping through the park is a roadway, already known to Toledo citizens as "Memorial Way." Sides of this roadway are flanked by trees, each of which is named for some man from Toledo or Lucas county who made the supreme sacrifice in the World war, bearing his name in everlasting bronze and keeping forever fresh his memory. Other roadways of the park will be named after cities, towns and particular engagements in which these men fought. The whole centers around the great monument, where a tower of unusual proportions is surmounted by a light which may be seen for miles.

The site of the park covers 215 acres, much of which is forested and naturally adapts itself to landscaping. While a portion of the park is to be used as a general cemetery, a section near the monument, which will permit the interment of 2,000 bodies, has been set aside for the use of the American Legion, where the bodies of soldier and sailor dead may be interred and perpetual care assured. The administration of this section is directly under the Lucas county Legion council, who will have a seat on the board of trustees.

Dedication of the memorial trees is planned for Decoration day, at which time the Legion will have charge of the services. The ceremony of the laying of the corner stone will occur later in the summer.

The "Memorial Lantern," as the monument is tentatively known, will be maintained by the park officials without cost to soldiers' organizations, and arrangements are being perfected by them to make the burning of the great light perpetual.

KNOW THE NATIONAL ANTHEM

Minneapolis Allens, Members of Americanism Grading Class, Sing "The Star-Spangled Banner."

At least one group of Minneapolis allens have proved that they know the words of the national anthem, "The Star-Spangled Banner," better than do many native Americans, according to a report received by the Americanism commission of the American Legion.

These allens, all members of Americanization classes conducted throughout the city by school and naturalization officials, have completed their night school work and made up a class of 63 graduates at a commencement day program recently held.

Greeks and Italians mingled with the blond sons of Norway and Sweden, lads not out of their teens sat on the platform with a number of middle-aged women and older men, all with a mutual desire—to become American citizens.

As the closing feature of the commencement day program both the class and the audience, numbering nearly 1,000, stood and sang the national anthem. Those of the class knew the song, every word of it. The learning of it had been one of the most interesting achievements of the whole course of training for citizenry they had undertaken. Many members of the audience, singing away, stumbled over words of the verses, forgetting them, while those who were aspiring to become American citizens sang every word.

Diplomas were presented to all graduates of the class by Minnesota school and naturalization authorities, under whose auspices the classes are held. The classes are well attended and are decreasing difficulties which naturalization presents to the foreigner, making Americanization problems much easier for both the authorities and the aspirants for citizenship.

ALL URGED TO WEAR A POPPY

Chamber of Commerce of United States Requests Reverence of Men Who Fell in France.

All Americans are urged to wear the French poppy on Memorial day "in honor of the men who fell in France," by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. In a recent bulletin to member bodies in all parts of the country.

Replying to a request for assistance from the American Legion, Elliot H. Goodwin, resident vice president of the chamber, said:

"With this request we very gladly and sympathetically comply. It is our hope that organizations of business men will promote the wearing of poppies on May 30."

Poppies will be sold by American Legion posts and units of the Legion Auxiliary for the benefit of its graves endowment fund, for service and relief work and for war memorials.

Noble Achievement.

To use the world is nobler than to abuse it. To make the world better, lovelier and happier is the noblest work of man.

PHILADELPHIA AND PITTSBURG AT ALTOONA

Altoona will be the mecca for baseball fans from the west central section of the state on Wednesday, Sept. 12, when the Pittsburgh Pirates National league entry, and the Philadelphia Athletics, of the American league, meet in an inter-league, inter-city exhibition, the Cricket field, Altoona, to be the scene of the ball battle.

The exhibition game will be the Pirates' first Pennsylvania town exhibition of the 1923 season, while the visit of the Athletics will be the team's first to the Altoona section in a score of years. Both teams will be in Altoona with their regular lineups and managers.

The Cricket field, scene of the big battle, is the home of the Pennsylvania Railroad Baseball league and the paying field, of regulation size, is bleached, seats being provided for 30,000 persons. The grounds are parallel to trolley lines and six blocks from the railroad station.

General admission tickets for the big game are $1 to any part of the park with reservations being arranged by addressing the Car Shop Athletic Association, Altoona.

Altoona annually features an exhibition between local players and an invading major league club, the scheduling of the major league teams to oppose each other being the first event in the district, and one that is expected to result in a much better brand of ball, with a worth-while game for the fans.

The Pirates will bring to Altoona the team Babe Adams, pitcher Rabbit Maranville and the other stars who have been thrilling the National league fans during the season, including Max Carey, Bigbee, Reb Russell, Pie Trayner, Barnhart, Crigam and the classy receivers, Schmidt and

Curwensville's Own Column

Politics in Curwensville this year seems to be one of a long time. It was hardly enough voters at the Republican caucus to supply candidates to fill the offices that are to be served, and some uneasiness is felt by the voters as to the success of some of those who have filed nomination papers. There seems to be an aversion to caucuses, gatherings by the majority of voters of both parties, judging by their non-attendance when a call is issued for such a meeting. By mingling among Curwensville voters who are in touch with both parties, there is a possibility that the November vote is tabulated. The Democrats did not hold a caucus at all but will write names of favorite candidates on the blank lines on the ballot sheet. It seems to be some dissension among the voters relative to some of the names who have filed applications to be voted for at the primary and if signs are right there will be hard sledding for some of them. "In unity there is strength." Both parties should have nominated full tickets and then the polls and give their candidates their united support.

One of the men employed over at the mill just on the edge of the town, had a foot seriously injured by a fall of a log on Saturday morning. The injured man was brought to the office of Dr. Erhard, who dressed the injury, and then conveyed to his boarding house in an automobile.

Miss Frances Schorr left on Saturday for Braddock, Pa., where she has been engaged to teach a term in the public schools of that busy little city. This will be the beginning of her third term at that place, which is evidence that her work gives entire satisfaction.

Vincent Hark, accompanied by his wife and three children, motored to Curwensville on Sunday from Upper Bell township, and spent the majority of the day with their aunt, Mrs. Lew J. LaPorte, North Pine street. Mrs. LaPorte accompanied them to her old home and will remain for a week.

John Bloom, one of Pike township road makers, left on Saturday for Delaware, O., expecting to spend a week with a daughter. Mrs. Bloom has been there for several weeks and will return home with him.

TWO MURDERS IN THIS COUNTY LAST TWO WEEKS

ONE KILLED, MANY INJURED, WHEN MOB ATTACKS KLAN PARADERS AT CARNEGIE

Pittsburgh, Aug. 27.—One man is in the Allegheny county jail facing a probable charge of murder, three others are in the same prison awaiting further investigation into their actions, while county detectives, deputy sheriffs and Carnegie police are searching for an untold number of others—including many injured who have mysteriously disappeared—as a result of the riot in Carnegie late Saturday night in which one man was killed and more than 100 injured, several presumably seriously, when parading members of the Ku Klux Klan were attacked by a mob of citizens.

The dead man, a klanman, was identified yesterday afternoon at the county morgue as Thomas R. Abbott, 27 years old, a machinist, of Atlasburg, Washington county.

Patrick McDermott, 60 years old, an undertaker of West Main street, Carnegie according to county detectives, is the man held as his slayer. Chief of County Detectives Robert H. Brown said last night that as a result of information obtained from at least four bystanders, who claimed to have witnessed the killing of Abbott, McDermott is to be turned over to the coroner as the man who fired the fatal shot.

Atlanta, Ga., imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, who had arrived in Pittsburgh Saturday, was quoted by a statement by Samuel D. Rich, king kiegale for Pennsylvania.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 27.—District Attorney Samuel Gardner moved today to prevent further disturbances like the riot in Carnegie late Saturday night which resulted in the death of Thomas R. Abbott of Atlasburg, Washington county, Pa., a klanman, and injury to scores of others.

Gardner conferred with the chief of the Klan here and officials of Carnegie in efforts to learn just what caused the mob of close to 2,000 to attack the Klansmen with clubs and firearms.

Chief Burgess J. C. Conley today declared that the mob attacked the Klansmen when the latter insisted on holding a parade without a permit. Conley said although no permit was asked of him, he would have refused one, owing to the intense anti-Klan feeling.

Scores of arrests were made but the majority were released after paying small fines on technical charges of possessing firearms. One man, Patrick McDermott, an undertaker of Carnegie, who was seen by eye witnesses holding a smoking revolver in the door of his shop at the time Abbott fell, is being held in the county jail.

The chief of the Klan here has offered rewards totalling $5,000 for the arrest and conviction of Abbott's slayer or slayers.

POPULAR ARTISTS TO APPEAR HERE IN BAND CONCERT

Music lovers will be pleased to learn that features of the American Legion "On to Reading" concert tomorrow evening will include Miss Mary Mitchell and Mr. Robert Mitchell, soprano and tenor, sister and brother, who are so popular here. It is believed that this is Miss Mitchell's first appearance as a soloist with band accompaniment here and those acquainted with the wonderful quality and volume of her voice are looking forward to a real treat. Both Miss and Mr. Mitchell graciously assented to do their bit towards sending our band to Reading by appearing as soloists in what will be a wonderful program.

The concert is tomorrow evening. Did you get your tickets yet? Better get them at one of the many places. They are for sale so as not to be delayed at the gate tomorrow evening. Get them for another reason too. It is up to Clearfield to send that band to Reading.

Philipsburg Man Pummelled To Death Yesterday Afternoon In Moonshine Brawl Near East End

Body Flung Over Front Porch Rail and Permitted to Hang Two Hours After Death.

FOUR ARRESTED.

Clearfield county, which had been without a murder case for many months, now has two on her hands, both of which are the product of the past couple of weeks.

First From Morann.

The first case comes from Morann, between Houtzdale and Janesville, where one man struck another over the head with a club, causing a serious fracture of the skull from the effect of which the clubbed man died in the Philipsburg Hospital one day last week and the murderer is down in jail.

Second Here.

The second homicide occurred Sunday afternoon at the home of Harry Bailey, out at Weaverhurst, near the Clearfield Sewer Pipe works.

Moonshine the Cause.

Bailey runs a boarding house, several men engaged in coal mining, residing with him. Sunday morning Albert E. Brookman, aged about 45 years, whose home is at Tonawanda, New York, but who has been employed by George Raines on his farm near Philipsburg, came to the Bailey home and had breakfast with Bailey and his boarders. After breakfast, accompanied by one of the boarders, Brookman drove over to Spike Island, on the Centre County side, near Osceola, and are alleged to have secured a quantity of "high pressure" Spike Island moonshine.

Returning to the Bailey home with the stuff they soon had a full-fledged drinking bout in full swing. It was a fighting brand of shine and after imbibing freely there was much jangling and scrapping throughout the day.

Hand to Hand Fight.

Along about 3:15 o'clock Brookman, who was a big husky man, went to "gripe" with Clyde Stedley, aged 38, another of the party, and soon had Stedley on the floor out of business. Bailey and the other men succeeded in pulling Brookman off Stedley and then Brookman piled into Bailey. This started a free for all. Brookman soon had Bailey on his back and was hammering him. At this point some person seized a chair and bringing it down on Brookman's head crushed the back of his skull. Brookman after having his skull crushed is said to have made his way out of the house and fell across the porch railing, where he lay doubled across, railing until Alfred Rupert, who lives nearby, went to the house and demanded that Bailey remove the man from where he was hanging and get him medical attention.

Dr. J. Paul Frantz was called and when he arrived, about 5:45 o'clock found that Brookman was dead, and Dr. Frantz gives it as his opinion that death occurred about 3:57 o'clock or at least two hours before he was called.

Brutal Treatment.

Dr. Frantz notified the authorities and Mayor Kittelberger, Chief of Police McMullen, Deputy Sheriff H. F. Hummelbaugh and Constable T. B. Reilly went out to the Bailey home to investigate the affair. As a result of their investigation Harry Bailey, aged 35, proprietor of the boarding house, William Stonebraker aged 25, Clyde Stedley and Jimmy Geelen, aged about 17, son of Bailey's housekeeper, were taken into custody and brought up town and placed in jail.

All the prisoners deny all knowledge of how Brookman came by his death.

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, after a hasty review of the situation early yesterday, issued a statement, declaring that his office would make an unbiased and thorough investigation into the whole affair, aiming at the arrest and prosecution of each and every person who had broken the law in any way.

Coroner William H. McGregor, who visited the scene of the riot early in the morning, later said his office was co-operating with the district attorney's office and other agencies in a complete inquiry into the slaying of Abbott and the surrounding incidents.

A meeting of 500 Ku Klux Klansmen in two Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday afternoon, at which the Carnegie riot was the lone topic, was presided by a stranger, from Dr. W. H. Evans.

Scottsdale, Pa., Aug. 27.—Burgess W. L. Shaffer regrets the Ku Klux Klan riot in Carnegie but sees reason for refusing a permit entitling the Klan to stage a demonstration and parade here next Saturday night, Shaffer said here today.

Shaffer said he would confer with Sheriff John Black of Westmoreland county regarding the advisability of prohibiting a demonstration at this time.

BOYS, 11 AND 16, BURNED AT STAKE PLAYING "INDIAN"

Spring Lake, N. J., Aug. 27.—Play turned into stark tragedy early today when James Spindler, 11, and William Hubbard, 16, died after being virtually roasted alive.

Dick Forman and Taylor Hubbard, 18, brother of William, are being held in jail pending investigation.

During play, which included a game of "Indian," Spindler and Hubbard were tied to a tree by the elder boys. Police say excelsior was piled around the youngsters. A match was applied to the pile but instead of the excelsior burning itself out quickly, oil-soaked ground around the tree sprang into flame.

Unable to break through the wall of fire, the older boys ran for help while the two victims shrieked in agony. Spindler and Hubbard were charred unconscious when dragged from the burning ground, where they had fallen when the ropes that held them to the tree gave away.

PINCHOT TALKS STRAIGHT FROM THE SHOULDER TO EIGHT MEMBERS OF THE ANTHRACITE AGREEMENT CONTROVERSY

Public Wants Settling and Settlement Means
Both Sides Must Be Willing to Arbitrate.

SAYS GOVERNOR

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 27.—Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania today served notice on the anthracite miners and operators that their differences must be settled and the threatened coal strike averted.

Unless this is done, he told them, the state of Pennsylvania would use every means to protect the public's interest.

Pinchot did not advance any plan for breaking the existing deadlock between the two parties. He only asked that they agree to confer with him privately, the miners this afternoon and the operators tomorrow morning.

The Governor, speaking to the four representatives of the miners and four of the operators in the big, gold-glittering reception room of the capitol, stressed the needs of the public.

The rights of the miners to a fair wage must be accepted, he pointed out. The rights of the operators to a fair profit cannot be violated.

"But the general public is a party of this controversy," he said "and its rights as well as the rights of the other two parties must be represented and recognized."

"A shortage of anthracite means not only a huge loss of wages to the miners, but it means also the loss of health among millions of American families, loss of comfort, working power and of time.

"I express a truth that none can deny when I say that the anthracite-using public of the United States are losing patience, and I ask you to consider that fact with care.

"The public demands that this controversy should be settled and that a suspension of mining shall be avoided.

"Settlement means that neither side can get everything it would like to have. Public needs must have coal and I am entirely confident that the public is going to have it.

"It is my duty to use every lawful means at my command to insure to the public the necessary supply."

Pinchot granted a veiled assurance to the miners that he would not press for arbitration of the matter when he said:

"I am fully aware that the strike is a right which should not be arbitrarily abridged or denied."

MAURER LAST MAN TO "ADVISE" PINCHOT BEFORE THE MEETING

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 27.—James H. Maurer, president of the State Federation of Labor, was called to confer with Governor Pinchot today as the last of the confidential advisors to meet him before going into conference with the miners and operators.

The meeting was said to be significant since Maurer has been close to the Governor, who has accepted his advice on numerous occasions.

Pinchot has talked with scores of "advisors" since the anthracite question became uppermost in his mind. Early and late they have sat with him around the table at the executive mansion and in his office at the capitol expressing their views.

One of the first to confer with Pinchot on the coal question, it was learned, was Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association and a power in state politics.

In keeping in touch with the actual attitude of the miner, it was indicated Pinchot may call upon Father J. J. Curran, leading figure in the strike settlement of 1922, and Bishop Hoban of Scranton, who have powerful influence among the men.

NEW YORK CENTRAL VIGOROUSLY PUTS FORWARD ITS TRUNK LINE PROGRAM: ASKS CLEARFIELD TO GET IN LINE AND PUSH

R. W. Davis, of the Executive office of the New York Central Railroad Company New York City, was in Clearfield today in the interest of his company.

Mr. Davis is interested in getting firsthand information as to the sentiments in this section regarding the proposed "New Trunk Line for Pennsylvania," a project long in the minds of the forward-looking executives at the head of this great railroad system the past 25 years.

This proposition has again come to the surface when the changing currents of railroad manipulation and politics require that the general public must be given the facts in the case in order to strengthen the hands of the New York Central people who are striving to retain control of the Philadelphia and Reading and Central Railroad of New Jersey, which the Inter-State Commerce Commission seeks to turn over to the Baltimore & Ohio.

The big business movements of the big railroad systems of the country are as a matter of course, no longer the general public to understand, but retention of these two short pieces of railroad would be of decided advantage to the New York Central.

Plans for future development, and as what concerns the New York Central concerns this section, which it is largely developing, and Pennsylvania as a whole, it is up to our people to get the proper slant at affairs and assist so far as possible in the movement which is about to be made throughout the West Branch Valley to show the Inter-State Commerce Commission that the new trunk line proposal of the New York Central is a really worth while proposition and would be a decided advantage not only to the people of Pennsylvania but to transportation generally in this country and therefore all the people of the United States.

Mr. Davis is not only thoroughly posted but "full of his subject" and presents the proposition in alluring form to the Pennsylvanian interested in and loyal to old Pennsylvania, which such new line would make even a greater industrial state than she is at present, to say nothing of the manifold other advantages to be derived from such a line.

Mr. Davis in company with J. E. Hills, of the local New York Central forces, made The Progress office a friendly call this morning and had no difficulty in convincing us that "a new trunk line for Pennsylvania" would be of decided and unmeasured advantage to Clearfield. Mr. Davis also said a public meeting would be held at Williamsport about September 6th, for the purpose of showing the people of this section of Pennsylvania what the plans of the N. Y. C. were in this connection and just what they proposed to do to further the new line. President Smith and other high officials in the company will be present and address this meeting, which will be held under the auspices of the Williamsport Chamber of Commerce.

A delegation of Clearfield people will attend the Williamsport meeting and we will have more to say on subject later.

Injuries, attempting to leave the inference that he crushed his skull in a fall. But they fail to account for the man getting such a fall and walking out of the house to hang over the porch railing where he was allowed to remain for an hour or more.

The coroner in describing the affair said that Brookman had Bailey down and was kneeling over the prostrate man, pinning him when he, Bailey, and Stadley seized him from behind and pulled him away, and that he was then put out of the house and fell across the porch railing.

It is the contention of the authorities that while Brookman was kneeling over Bailey, Stadley or some other person struck him on the head with a chair, causing the fatal crushing of his skull, and he was then thrown out of the house and landed over the porch rail where he hung and died.

County Coroner Dr. J. I. Pollum, of DuBois, came to Clearfield today and began an investigation into the killing. After looking the ground over, the coroner summoned a jury and is taking testimony this afternoon in an attempt to locate the perpetrator of the deed.

WIL OPEN 18TH YEAR OF SERVICE AS MUSIC SCHOOL

The Susquehanna College of Music will open its doors for the eighteenth year on Tuesday, September 3rd for what looks to be one of the most successful years in the history of the institution. The registration thus far shows that more interest is being taken in music and Prof. H. Clark Thayer, under whose capable direction this institution of music learning has grown to be one of the section's leading temples of musical learning, states that the outlook for the coming year is exceedingly bright.

The faculty this year will be composed of H. Clark Thayer, Prof. Edgar W. Schaeffer, Mrs. Jessie Thayer or Schaeffer and Anna Way in the musical departments.

A new instructor has been engaged for the Department of Natural Expression at a great cost. Violet Williams Duffy, a teacher of elocution of national repute has been engaged for this line of work and comes to the school very highly recommended. Graduating from the education department of the Indiana Normal School and Grove City College, Mrs. Duffy took an extension course with special attention to story telling, 65 dramatic art and public speaking at the Shoemaker School of Elocution under the celebrated Madame Vandergrift one of the foremost teachers of expression in the country. Following this course Mrs. Duffy studied under Blanche Shattuck at the Gurry School of Expression at Boston. This founded an education in the art of natural expression which has brought honor and a country-wide reputation.

For one season Mrs. Duffy was story teller and instructor of pageantry for the Redpath Chautauqua where she won for herself the highest praise from the management as one of the most popular Junior Chautauqua directors on the Redpath circuit. Following this year of Chautauqua work Mrs. Duffy was engaged for some time as director of physical education and organized recreation for the National Recreation Association of America, gaining a wide experience in welfare work and teaching young and old America how to play. Following this Mrs. Duffy will have to offer the following course: public speaking, after dinner speaking, toasts and a general help in public platform work of all kinds. She will also have a class in gymnasium for children and adults to follow with a special course in folk dancing.

How Twice Breaths

Every work of a twig has a meaning in the life of a tree, says Nature Magazine. The tiny dots scattered hither and yonder over the twigs are its breathing pores. Day and night, winter and summer, the tree breathes in oxygen and gives off carbon dioxide. The great work of spring and summer requires much additional breathing space which the leaves furnish.

Meaning of "Hague"

In the old language Hague means bridge. The name of the capital, therefore, is The bridge given to the spot centuries ago when it was a hunting lodge of the counts of Holland. The Dutch people, or more properly the Hollanders, have a great liking for ornamental bridges.

STATE TROOPER FORCED TO KILL ELK COUNTY MAN.

St. Marys, Pa., Aug. 27.—A Spaniard by the name of Ceresa was shot and almost instantly killed on Saturday evening at Kersey as the prelude to an intended bootlegging raid by state police from St. Marys. The shooting was done by Corporal Jones of the St. Marys detail, and according to the facts learned was entirely in self defense, Ceresa having first drawn a gun and fired it twice at the officer before he drew his revolver. The state trooper fired a total of five shots in rapid succession, and the Spaniard fell over dead.

While Corporal Jones did not wish to discuss the shooting previous to the holding of the inquest, it was learned that he and Private Dunwith, accompanied by a constable, went to Kersey, about 8 miles from St. Marys for the purpose of making a raid on an alleged moonshiner. Arriving at Kersey, the officers sought information regarding the whereabouts of the man wanted from Ceresa. The Spaniard readily assented to pointing out the place, apparently, and told Corporal Jones to accompany him down an alley. When in the dark alley, according to Jones, the Spaniard suddenly drew his 32 revolver, yelled "hands up," and fired twice. Neither bullet took effect in the officer, and the trooper, drawing his own gun, fired five shots in rapid succession, felling the Spaniard.

The shooting took place about 10 o'clock. An inquest will be held today at which time the blame for the shooting will be placed. According to the facts adduced, the officer in self defense.

DREAM SCARED LAD; TELLS MOTHER CHUM KILLED PLAYMATE

Providence, R. I., Aug. 24.—Eight-year-old Antonio Testa of this city said "the shadow" of Michael Lurgio, 9 years old, in a dream last night and told his mother that Henri Rossi, 13 years old, had shot the Lurgio boy and buried him in a hole just over the Providence line in the town of Johnston on Tuesday afternoon. Police men, however, found the body of the boy, who had been reported missing since Tuesday.

The Real boy admitted the shooting, but said he did not know the double barreled shotgun, left by his father in a shack was loaded. He said, according to police:

"We were playing and Mike stood in the doorway. I pulled the trigger and it went off. I hit him in the left breast and he fell over. Then I was afraid my father would beat me for having kids around the shack, so we buried him."

The Testa boy said young Rossi made him promise not to tell. He kept the secret until he was awakened by a dream last night and then told his mother.

PEASANT GAP FISH HATCHERY TO BE ENLARGED

The State fish hatchery at Peasant Gap, is to be enlarged to increase its annual output 40 per cent. Work on a large new building is now under way, ground having been broken several days ago.

N. R. Duller, State Commissioner of Fisheries, who was at the Peasant Gap hatchery the other night, said that the plans under way provide for so enlarging the hatchery as to make it one of the largest in the east. Natural conditions there for propagating and developing brook and brown trout, stated Commissioner Duller are better for a large, modern hatchery than may be found in most sections.

The present output of the hatchery is from 600,000 to 800,000 one-year-old brook and brown trout. With the completion of the proposed new propagating and developing building the annual output will be increased to a minimum of 1,320,000 each year. This may be advanced to 1,500,000 a year.

Seven Points of Supremacy

1. The shoe built on "FOOT-FITTERS" is of the best quality obtainable. It is the latest style, cut from standard pattern leather.
2. "FOOT-FITTERS" are the only shoes in the world having full length vamp and sole leather last sole. This feature prevents slipping at the tip and makes a smooth outer and inner surface.
3. The handle and shoulder channelled so that they fit tightly against the foot. There is no need or room for a cork filler. A small piece of cork is used to prevent squeaking.
4. The Clasp's inside pocket is of great value, for it saves the wear on the sock. There is no need to rub against.
5. "FOOT-FITTERS" last is 1/2 inch longer than generally used. They give additional support to the feet and increase the comfort and wear of the shoe.
6. The vamp is separated from the sole and holds the shoe in shape.
7. "FOOT-FITTERS" shoes are called "FOOT-FITTERS" because they fit the foot snugly. The combination lasts they support the foot like a doctor's bandage. "FOOT-FITTERS" give comfort, service and appearance.

POINCARE, WORLD'S MOST IMPORTANT MAN TODAY, PUZZLES EUROPE WITH HIS POKER FACE

By MILTON BRONNER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

Paris Aug. 25.—Who's the most important person in the world?

All Europe makes the same answer—smilingly or frowningly, proudly or profanely, as the case may be:

"Raymond Poincare!"

Upon this little 68-year-old bearded Frenchman—whose beard seems queerly to droop and bristle at the same time—world eyes are focused.

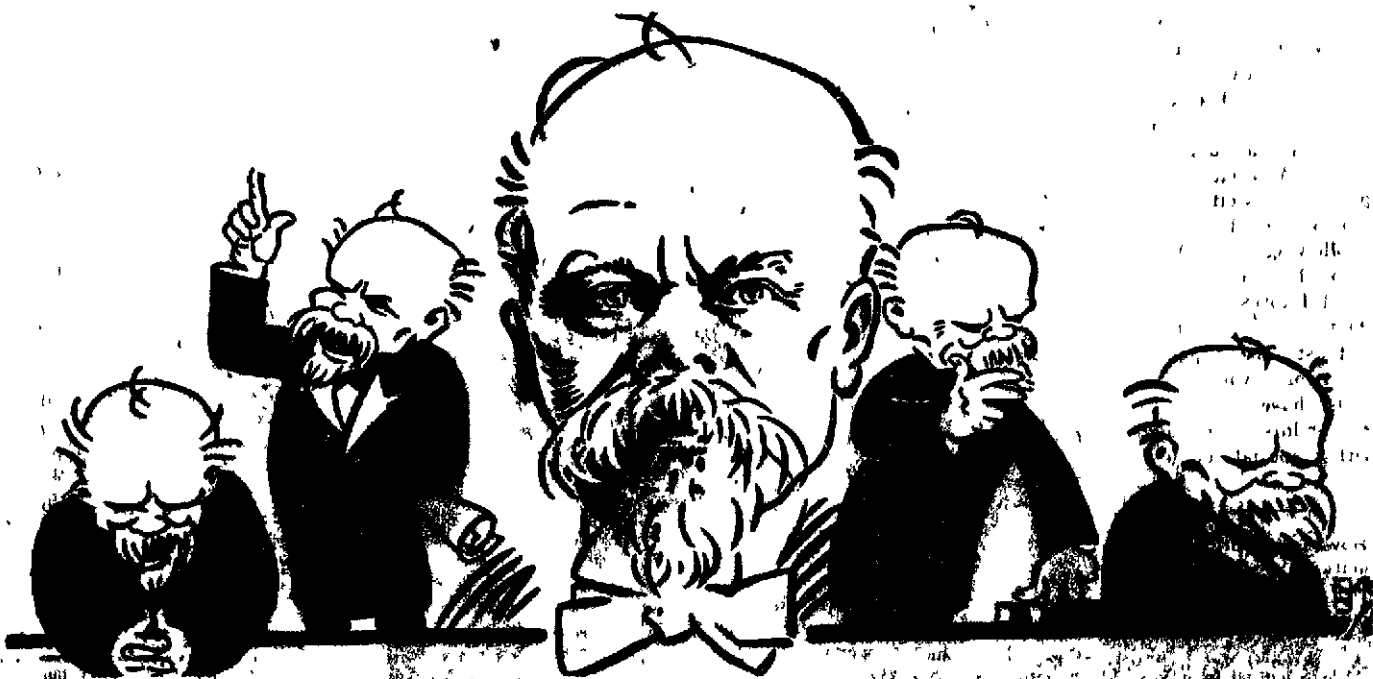

Some say he will be Europe's salvation; others say he will be Europe's damnation. But they all agree that he's the man to be reckoned with, the man who sits in the world's greatest gambling game with a "pat" hand and a "poker face."

Largely, writer and master politician, this prime minister of France by virtue of France's strategic position, its army and its air fleet governs Europe.

"If Poincare remains in office," they tell you in Paris, "every government in Europe—and America, too—will have to reckon with him. If he falls from power his fall will have the effect of a quiet revolution in France that will have echoes all over Europe. They hate him in Germany, and they hate him in England."

What next from Poincare?

This is the way an observer in London answers the question:

ARTIST YATES' IMPRESSION OF PREMIER POINCARE IN ACTION

"If Europe is a powder barrel, Poincare is the man who is playing with a lighted match. If Germany is full of open wounds, it is Poincare who is poking them to keep them open. If England is really trying to bring peace on the continent, it is Poincare who bars the way. If France actually has the practicable plan, it is Poincare who is expected to point the way."

Poincare—whose policies are the despair of the rest of Europe and his whiskers the delight of caricaturists here and abroad—is highly explosive both as an orator and a writer. He proved it when he was trying to bring down the Briand cabinet.

Then, called to power, he had to act or swallow his words. He acted. He took France into the Ruhr. And he has just announced he won't get out.

He is the most nicknamed person in French politics. Clemenceau is "the Tiger." But the list for Poincare begins with the well-known "Poincare-la-Guerre"—Poincare-the-war. Meaning, of course, that he helped bring about the war which began in 1914. Only the other day one of the publications bitterly opposed to him called him:

"Poincare Poincare, Poincaruhr, Poincarit."

The "roff" refers to his bringing about the close political and military alliance between France and Russia of the czars. "Ruhr," of course, refers to a charge that not long ago, when making one of his numerous speeches in a war graveyard, he laughed. Friends explained that it wasn't really a laugh; that the sun got in his eyes and caused him to grimace!

Born in 1860, son of a government official, educated for the bar, Poincare had a long and distinguished career in the chamber of deputies and afterwards in the French Senate. He was president of the republic during the war and is now premier. Supported in the main by the bulk of the Parisian press, he is nevertheless the object of sharp attacks. He has been described as "made for war, made by war."

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. B. G.

Members of the American Legion, department of Pennsylvania, will be glad to know that the membership of the state is now close to the 50,000 mark. Although Department Commander William B. Reilly has not been able to fulfill his ambition of 100,000 legion members in this state, he has done much to keep Pennsylvania as one of the leading states of the national organization.

Every qualified voter in Pennsylvania may take part in the fall primary and subsequent primaries and elections if those who are disqualified, away from home on election days, avail themselves of the right to vote by mail provided by the recent legislature in the passage of the Womer absent voters' bill.

The absent voters' registration law providing for registration in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Scranton, also was amended by providing that the husband or wife of the person who is engaged in the state or federal government's work and who is unable to get to his or her voting home to register, may have the same privilege of registering by mail as the person employed.

The absent voters' bill provides that any qualified voter unavoidably away from home on election day and outside the county in which he is an elector, but in the United States, may vote by appearing before a person authorized to administer oaths. The voting privilege is confined to those electors and questions upon which he would be entitled to vote in his own election district.

Application for an absent voters' ballot must be made not more than thirty nor less than three days preceding an election. Application for a certificate of qualification and ballot is made to the county commissioners either in person or by mail. The certificate gives the voter's name, address, ward or district and with the exception of those who reside in country districts, must state that the voter is lawfully registered.

Upon receipt of the ballot and certificate the voter is to appear before an official authorized to administer oaths, display the ballot to show that it is unmarked and mark it in the presence of the official, who, however, is not permitted to see how the ballot is voted.

The ballot and affidavit accompanying it are sent to the prothonotary and county commissioners of the voter's resident county and must reach them on or before election day. They are placed in a separate ballot box and not opened until the official count starts.

NEW FORD FOR 1924 NOW ON DISPLAY AT ALL FORD AGENCIES

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 27.—Introduction of a higher radiator, bringing new and improved body lines to all types of Ford cars, is announced today by the Ford Motor Company.

The changes have just gone into effect and the various types are now in production.

While the larger radiator has been made standard on all types and while it has made possible other betterments in body design, there is no radical departure in construction, but rather a general improvement which has resulted in more graceful lines.

The new radiator sets an inch and a half higher than the former and has an apron at the bottom which joins a similar apron effect of the fender on either side, giving a highly finished appearance to the front of the car. The larger radiator also increases cooling efficiency.

Most conspicuous among the new types is the Ford coupe which is of entirely new body design and construction, resulting in a more trim exterior appearance, more comfortable seating arrangement and a greater luggage carrying capacity.

From the top there is a graceful sweep in the bowl to the radiator, bringing a pleasing effect to the front. The doors are wide and open forward making access and exit easy. They are heavily framed for rigidity and strength. The compartment at the rear has been enlarged to afford increased carrying capacity. The gasoline tank is under the seat, with divided cushions to afford easy filling of the tank from the right side, making it unnecessary for the driver to leave his seat. Ventilator in the cow and a visor over the windshield add much to the attractiveness of the car. A new rear fender of more sturdy character also is a feature.

Interior features are of choice material and the arrangement of the deeply cushioned seat has been effected so that at the rear there is a small recess shelf for carrying parcels. The rear vision window is much larger and oblong in shape. Door windows have been equipped with revolving type window regulators and door locks are provided. Side windows are equipped with the lever type window lifters.

Marked, too, is the improvement in the four door sedan. Highly popular since its introduction a year ago, because of its low, graceful lines, the car now presents even much better lines and a sturdier appearance.

This has been brought about by the installation of an entirely new cowl with a graceful sweep from the dash blending into the larger hood and radiator. The change also affords an increase in leg room for occupants of the front seat.

In the open types, the touring car and runabout, the cowl has been enlarged and flows to a graceful curve to the higher hood.

The result brings a most pleasing effect to the exterior appearance of both types. The improvement in the touring car which came when the one man top and waiting windshield were introduced, is greatly enhanced by the larger radiator, the car appearing lower and more attractive than ever. The effect on the roadster is likewise most appealing, giving it a more rugged and sturdy appearance.

The new radiator also is extended to the Ford truck chassis, affording improved appearance and better cooling to delivery services.

These new Ford types and the generally recognized performance ability of the Ford under all motoring conditions, promise to bring a greater demand than ever before as the public becomes more fully acquainted with the higher standards and greater values which have been incorporated. No changes are contemplated in prices.—(Adv.)

CELEBRATED 75TH BIRTHDAY

Daniel Barger, one of the Third Ward's best known citizens, celebrated the 75th anniversary of his birth at his home Sunday. A family dinner was served at which all the members were present except one, who lives in the West. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Barger, Mr. and Mrs. John Barger, and children, Jack and Kitty; Mr. and Mrs. Orlo Barger and children Preston and Margaret; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Passmore and son, Clifford; Mrs. Lee Sault and daughter Marjorie; Mr. and Mrs. Guy Barger, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Steffy and children Elizabeth, Billy and Beverly; and Ernest Barger.

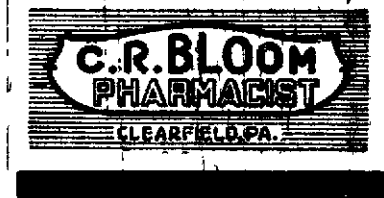

The occasion was a highly enjoyable one.

Political Paragraphs

ODELL HAUSER'S COLUMN

Last week was the week in Pennsylvania politics in which matters had to step aside for local matters. Before the week was over the counties were definitely embarked on their political campaigns for office, with consequent bearing on local leadership and control.

Tuesday of last week, as almost every school child must know by this time, was the last day on which nomination petitions for local office could be filed. On that day every county had its completed list of those who were eligible to imamate as well as upon the altar of public service. Anyone not on the list was deprived of that privilege.

But that, of course, was not the whole story. It may have been the whole story in counties where there was no party within the parties and the county organizations could nominate their choices without interference or opposition from anybody.

Unfortunately—or fortunately, if you look at it that way—not every one of our sixty-seven was in that position. There were always squabbles for the local control and this year has provided no exception to the rule.

And so all was not ended on Tuesday. Besides the day which is the last for filing nominating petitions, the law recognizes a day which is the last for withdrawing petitions that have been filed. In other words, the law recognizes the right of a man to change his mind.

Among the choicest tricks of local political organizations are those which cluster about the process of causing a candidate who has filed a nominating petition to change his mind.

When there is a factional contest, each side endeavors to mask its ticket so that the other side may not be sure of the identity of its candidates and alter its own accordingly.

The masking is accomplished in several ways. Sometimes, in addition to entering the names of the men and women it really intends to run, an organization will enter names of persons who have no intention of supporting. At other times it is achieved by the necessity of doing this by the fact that there are already candidates in the field who have gone in on opposition, hoping that in the end the organization will take up their cause.

In the good old days when the law said that candidates for any office must appear on the ballot in the alphabetical order of their names, the entering of "false" candidates was a nuisance. Since it was always recognized that the first names in a column of candidates received hundreds of votes from persons who did not know the men involved, but only knew they had to vote for so many men under that particular heading, factions would enter a candidate whose name began with one of the first letters in order to draw the so-called "bewildered" vote away from an opposition candidate whose name began with a later letter.

That was only one of the many practices of trickery which grew up about the alphabetical ordering of names on the ballot. Governor Spruel once remarked facetiously that there was a young man in his county who surely had a bright political future before him. His name, the Governor explained, was Aaron A. A. A.

The alphabetical ordering of names has been abolished by the General Assembly and the candidates now draw lots to determine their position on the ballot. That is a very practical reform and has done away with much trickery in the filing of nominating petitions.

But there is still plenty of jockeying involved in the process of battling factions straightening out their tickets after the last day for filing and before the last day for withdrawing, which was Friday. That is what the people of the counties in which there are factional battles have been hearing most about during the last part of the week. I wonder if all of them understand it?

Where there are two opposed tickets which have been masked by any of the processes alluded to, or any others, the leaders have only from Tuesday until Friday to get them clear.

It is, of course, very necessary to get them clear, for otherwise strength will be diverted from the ticket they desire to elect. If, for instance, an independent ticket is being put in the field against an organization ticket, it would be a serious matter to have some man recognized as an organization man in the field against the organization candidate for the particular office. That is because the independents would muster their full strength for one candidate while the organization strength would be divided between two candidates.

So the organization must pry out of the race any man of their own stripe who is a little fractious. It must also eliminate any other candidates except those it believes will divide the strength of the opposing side. The same principle applies in reverse to the opposition ticket.

That part is fairly simple, compared to other complications that almost always exist. There are men who file nominating petitions as a sort of political blackmail. They go in and they know the leaders will have to get them out. Then price for withdrawal is some kind of a deal which will assure them of something or other they want in the future.

Although this phase of political campaigning has been sketched only broadly, enough has been said to show the subtle complications that are present and to give a clue to those citizens who may not have understood what was at the bottom of all the political excitement they have been hearing about this week.

The first crisis came on Tuesday when, with the filing of petitions the leaders knew how successful or unsuccessful they had been in trying to shape things as they wanted up to that time. They then had three days in which they might seek to straighten out any tangles that had arisen. On Friday, when four o'clock came and those withdrew who intended to withdraw while those remained who intended to remain, the question came to an end and everyone knew exactly what names would be printed on the ballot for the Primary Elections.

From this time on the matter enters a new phase. The question of jockeying candidates is disposed of. It now becomes a question of campaign for the election of the ticket each of the factions favors. There are comparatively few counties, certainly not many of the larger ones, in which this question will not prevail from this time until primary election day on September 18th.

As far as the principal interest in state politics outside the county situation goes it appears that in the great battle of the Code, State Treasurer Snyder has lost the first round. The Dauphin County court gave its decision on Attorney-General Woodruff's action of mandamus against him and declared that he must return to the Auditor General the pay-rolls he had held up, either approving them or disapproving, and in the latter event giving his reason therefor in writing.

It is not a direct defeat because Mr. Snyder's principal object was to obtain a ruling on the constitutional validity of the Code. But he could not get that question linked into the action, the essence of the court's decision being that the Act of 1811 continued to govern and the Code had made no difference, and that under the Act of 1811 Mr. Snyder was wrong.

One cannot know whether this means the end of Mr. Snyder's attack on the Code. He has talked considerably about various injunctions he has prepared, and that sort of thing, and we may or may not hear more of them later. Auditor-General Lewis has held from the start that the Act of 1811 applied and the Code could not be brought into the question. It looks as though Mr. Snyder had better borrow Mr. Lewis' lawyers for a while.

FRANK KINSLOE, PIONEER WEST BRANCH PUBLISHER

Well-Known Clinton County Editor Dead at Lock Haven Home.

Lock Haven, Pa., Aug. 25.—Frank Kinsloe, president of Lock Haven Express Printing Company, died early today. He had been actively engaged in the newspaper business in this city for upward of half a century.

The deceased's father, J. B. G. Kinsloe, came to Lock Haven from Williamsport in the early seventies and established the weekly Clinton Republican, and later a daily edition, the Evening Express, was issued. Upon the death of the father, the business passed into the hands of his two sons, W. A. and Frank Kinsloe, who conducted the two newspapers until 1917, when the enterprise was merged with the Clinton Democrat Publishing Company, under the name of Lock Haven Express Printing Company, issuing the daily Express and two weeklies, the Clinton Republican and the Clinton Democrat. Frank Kinsloe was made president of the new corporation and his brother, W. A. Kinsloe, who was elected secretary.

In earlier years the deceased, in addition to his newspaper activities, was prominent as manager of theatrical and lecture course circles in the West Branch Valley. He was a charter member of the Lock Haven lodge, B. P. O. Elks, and was an earnest but silent worker in all charitable ventures. He is survived by his widow, Helen Lambert Kinsloe, and one son, Professor Charles L. Kinsloe, head of the electrical engineering department at Pennsylvania State College.

Progress Editorial For Women

WOLVERINE COURAGE

By Florence Davies.

The wolverine, say the men who keep track of nature's ways, is making his last stand up in the western mountains. He is a fierce, white, hairy, truthfully, whatever you may truthfully call him. Mr. Wolverine has one outstanding quality of nobility, these same nature students tell us.

He will fight to the death for his lair and his cubs.

"Bloody but unbowed." It is when everything seems dead against him that Father Wolverine will make his most gallant stand. The intrepid little fur-coated, four-footed citizen of the wilds gets his back against the wall and gives in only when death stops his breath and films his eyes.

Somebody has said that it is only when you do all that you can and then do more, that you come off victor in hard battles with life—that the "more" is what makes the difference between success and failure. Father Wolverine makes that effort. So, in spite of hunters who long to exterminate all his tribe because of his thievish propensities—scooping the bait from their traps for instance—and in spite of dense snow drifts and scarcity of food and every other hardships that small live creatures of the mountains must face, this cousin of the badger lives on and refuses to become an extinct and forgotten member of the animal kingdom.

Rather different from the man who deserts his family every time the flutter of the stock's wings is imminent leaving the charities to look after his augmented family.

We heard the story yesterday of a little woman who must have had a bit of wolverine in her makeup, with the added virtues of fair dealing and strict honesty. She was left with two little girls and a run down farm. Did she put her children in an asylum and study the shortest route out of life as some discouraged parents have done? Not she. She studied farming instead, and increased her hay crop from 14 to 75 tons a year, with other things in proportion as time went on.

She built a new barn. She brought up and educated the little daughters. When the war brought women to the fore, she took part in Red Cross work.

Dreams of Childhood Come True When Sisters Marry Earls

MISS SARACOOK

Montreal, Aug. 25.—The last chapter of a fairy tale of childhood comes true as being written in the social registers here.

It began 15 odd years ago when two pretty little girls were playing together in the nursery of George Cook, one of Montreal's captains of finance.

A nurse had just been reading to them a tale of chivalry and romance. The children were enthralled. They dropped their dolls and playthings and listened attentively.

But finally the story ended, and the older of the sisters sighed:

"When I grow I am going to marry a soldier when he comes back from the war."

"And I shall marry a soldier, too," chimed in the younger girl, "but he must be an earl."

The older girl came back:

"Yes, I think I shall marry an earl."

The nurse smiled and repeated the story to the children's parents. They laughed and passed it up as just a dream of childhood.

But two years ago Miss Marion Cook, the older sister, startled her friends on two continents by the announcement of her engagement to the Earl of Minto.

And now comes the final rounding out of the prophecy of childhood with the engagement of the younger sister, Miss Sara Cook to the Earl of Haddington, as heroic as any character in the fairy tales.

He comes of one of the oldest families in the city of Britain. Ancestors of his have served in the army and the navy.

At one time he was a peer, a baron and a father of a son and a daughter.

He held the highest office in Scotland as Lord of the Sessions.

Both Earls fought in the great war—making them soldiers and earls just as the girls had dreamed.

AMERICAN FARM BUREAU

PRICE-FIXING BILLS OUTLINED BY SILVER

Dangers in Proposed Measures Are Vigorously Attacked.

Arbitrary governmental price-fixing for farm products is neither desirable nor necessary. Co-operative marketing, intermediate credits, warehouse receipts, and crop insurance will enable the farmer to get a proper, stable price for what he produces. By an automatic system of governmental price-fixing the minimum price would become the maximum price. The farmer would be out-traded by the other two-thirds of the population under any such scheme of governmental price guarantee.

In effect the producer would become a ward of the government. The very democracy of the republic would be imperiled.

These dangers in the proposed price-fixing bills are vigorously outlined by Gray Silver, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, in a remarkable letter addressed to Senator Arthur Capper, head of the farm bloc. Mr. Silver thanks the farm bloc for the highly constructive legislation passed by the last congress to aid a prostrate agriculture, particularly the intermediate credits and warehouse acts. By adding a system of crop insurance, which he urges the next congress to provide, Mr. Silver declares that the farming industry will have a complete scheme of credits for production and marketing. By using his crop insurance policies and his warehouse receipts, the farmer could market his products co-operatively and distribute them in an orderly manner throughout the 12 consecutive months rather than dumping them on a glutted market immediately after harvest.

Gray Silver.

In his letter Mr. Silver takes note of the surplus problem. He shows that by the new credits system and co-operative marketing the farmer will have his surplus in his own hands and he will automatically plan to rid himself of the burden through balanced production.

Those who belong to the price-fixing school of thought have a laudable objective, believes the farm bureau's legislative director, but they do not consider into what serious difficulties their method would lead. It would take away the farmer's right to negotiate with the other organized groups and would place him between the upper millstone of a fixed price on what he buys and the nether millstone of a fixed price on what he sells.

Let the farmer alone to work out his economic salvation on the road which he has chosen. Help him attain his object for the good of the whole people. He will then get a just price and will have a home comparable with the home of other people, a farm equipped for efficiency, a house furnished for comfort and beauty, good roads and automobiles, education—a new day in agriculture. The nation has no greater business than to provide a strong and happy rural population.

Governmental price-fixing will not do it. The farmer's own economic program—co-operative marketing, intermediate credit, warehouse receipts, crop insurance—will.

Mr. Silver's letter in part is as follows:

"The farmer will be out-traded and put in a position where the price of his product will be fixed by the other two-thirds of the population if he permits the government to fix the price or guarantee a price on his farm commodities."

"If in addition to having to meet organized groups who price their own products were we to provide for governmental stabilization by the method proposed in any of the bills now in congress, the farmer would find himself between the arbitrary price fixed by the groups from whom he must secure the things he buys and the arbitrary price fixed by the government on the things he produces. Since he is approximately one-third of the total population, he would be in position of having his customers, the other two-thirds of our population, after pricing their own goods, sit in with him and, with their majority vote, determine at what price the farmer would sell his products to them."

Through, or the Day.

Some people get pleasure even out of disaster, if only they can say, "I told you so."

IN MEMORY OF TOLEDO DEAD

Buckeye City and County to Erect Monument to Memory of War Heroes.

A monument of "living flame," to memorialize the heroic dead of Toledo, O., and of Lucas county, is to be erected on the most prominent spot in Memorial park, a new project, which, according to founders, will soon become a reality.

Sweeping through the park is a roadway, already known to Toledo citizens as "Memorial Way." Sides of this roadway are flanked by trees, each of which is named for some man from Toledo or Lucas county who made the supreme sacrifice in the World war, bearing his name in everlasting bronze and keeping forever fresh his memory. Other roadways of the park will be named after cities, towns and particular engagements in which these men fought. The whole centers around the great monument, where a tower of unusual proportions is surmounted by a light which may be seen for miles.

The site of the park covers 215 acres, much of which is forested and naturally adapts itself to landscaping. While a portion of the park is to be used as a general cemetery, a section near the monument, which will permit the interment of 2,000 bodies, has been set aside for the use of the American Legion, where the bodies of soldier and sailor dead may be interred and perpetual care assured. The administration of this section is directly under the Lucas county Legion council, who will have a seat on the board of trustees.

Dedication of the memorial trees is planned for Decoration day, at which time the Legion will have charge of the services. The ceremony of the laying of the corner stone will occur later in the summer.

The "Memorial Lantern," as the monument is tentatively known, will be maintained by the park officials without cost to soldiers' organizations, and arrangements are being perfected by them to make the burning of the great light perpetual.

Minneapolis Aliens, Members of Americanism Graduating Class, Sing "The Star-Spangled Banner."

At least one group of Minneapolis aliens have proved that they know the words of the national anthem, "The Star-Spangled Banner," better than do many native Americans, according to a report received by the Americanism commission of the American Legion.

These aliens, all members of Americanization classes conducted throughout the city by school and naturalization officials, have completed their night school work and made up a class of 63 graduates at a commencement day program recently held.

Greeks and Italians mingled with the blond sons of Norway and Sweden, lads not out of their teens sat on the platform with a number of middle-aged women and older men, all with a mutual desire—to become American citizens.

As the closing feature of the commencement day program both the class and the audience, numbering nearly 1,000, stood and sang the national anthem. Those of the class knew the song, every word of it. The learning of it had been one of the most interesting achievements of the whole course of training for citizenship they had undertaken. Many members of the audience, singing away, stumbled over words of the verses, forgetting them, while those who were aspiring to become American citizens sang every word.

Diplomas were presented to all graduates of the class by Minnesota school and naturalization authorities, under whose auspices the classes are held. The classes are well attended and are decreasing difficulties which naturalization presents to the foreigner, making Americanization problems much easier for both the authorities and the aspirants for citizenship.

ALL URGED TO WEAR A POPPY

Chamber of Commerce of United States Requests Reverence of Men Who Fell in France.

All Americans are urged to wear the French poppy on Memorial day "in honor of the men who fell in France," by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. In a recent bulletin to member bodies in all parts of the country.

Replying to a request for assistance from the American Legion, Elliot H. Goodwin, resident vice president of the chamber, said:

"With this request we very gladly and sympathetically comply. It is our hope that organizations of business men will promote the wearing of poppies on May 30."

Poppies will be sold by American Legion posts and units of the Legion Auxiliary for the benefit of its graves endowment fund, for service and relief work and for war memorials.

Noble Achievement.

To use the world is nobler than to abuse it. To make the world better, lovelier and happier is the noblest work of man.

PHILADELPHIA AND PITTSBURG AT ALTOONA

Altoona will be the mecca for baseball fans from the west central section of the state on Wednesday, Sept. 12, when the Pittsburgh Pirates, National league entry, and the Philadelphia Athletics, of the American league, meet in an inter-league, inter-city exhibition, the Cricket field, Altoona, to be the scene of the ball battle.

The exhibition game will be the Pirates' first Pennsylvania town exhibition of the 1923 season, while the visit of the Athletics will be the team's first to the Altoona section in a score of years. Both teams will be in Altoona with their regular lineups and managers.

The Cricket field, scene of the big battle, is the home of the Pennsylvania Railroad Baseball league and the paying field, of regulation size, is bleached, seats being provided for 30,000 persons. The grounds are parallel to trolley lines and six blocks from the railroad station.

General admission tickets for the big game are $1 to any part of the park with reservations being arranged by addressing the Car Shop Athletic Association, Altoona.

Altoona annually features an exhibition between local players and an invading major league club, the scheduling of the major league teams to oppose each other being the first event in the district, and one that is expected to result in a much better brand of ball, with a worth-while game for the fans.

The Pirates will bring to Altoona the team—Babe Adams, pitcher, Rabbit Maranville and the other stars who have been thrilling the National league fans during the season, including Max Carey, Bigbee, Reb Russell, Pie Trayner, Barnhart, Crigam and the classy receivers, Schmidt and Clear of the water in one wild leap. Insane with rage and terror, frantic to free himself of the cruel barb in his mouth. Leaping. Plunging. Thrashing the water. An 180-pound tarpon in action at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. It took two months to take this exceptional picture.

Curwensville's Own Column

Politics in Curwensville this year seems to be one of a long time. It was hardly enough voters at the Republican caucus to supply candidates to fill the offices that are to be served, and some uneasiness is felt by the voters as to the success of some of those who have filed nomination papers. There seems to be an aversion to caucuses, gatherings by the majority of voters of both parties, judging by their non-attendance when a call is issued for such a meeting. By mingling among Curwensville voters who are in touch with both parties, there again soon appears when the November vote is tabulated. The Democrats did not hold a caucus at all but will write name of favorite candidates on the blank lines on the ballot sheet. It seems to be some dissension among the voters relative to some of the names who have filed applications to be voted for at the primary and if signs are right there will be hard slogging for some of them. "In unity there is strength." Both parties should have nominated full tickets and then the polls and give their candidates their united support.

One of the men employed over at the mill just a few days on the job, had a foot seriously injured by a fall of a log and on Saturday morning, the injured man was brought to the office of Dr. Erhard, who dressed the injury, and then conveyed to his boarding house in an automobile.

Miss Frances Schorr left on Saturday for Braddock, Pa., where she has been engaged to teach a term in the public schools of that busy little city. This will be the beginning of her third term at that place, which is evidence that her work gives entire satisfaction.

William Hipps, manager of the shirt and overall factory, with his wife and part of his family, left on Saturday for a trip to Warren, O., to visit with his daughter, who resides in that city.

Vincent Hark, accompanied by his wife and three children, motored to Curwensville on Sunday from Upper Bell township, and spent the majority of the day with their aunt, Mrs. Lew J. LaPorte, North Pine street. Mrs. LaPorte accompanied them to her old home and will remain for a week.

John Bloom, one of Pike township road makers, left on Saturday for Delaware, O., expecting to spend a week with a daughter. Mrs. Bloom has been there for several weeks and will return home with him.

Guy Tozer, employed at the De sole leather tannery, was unfortunately last Saturday in cutting a deep gash in his left hand which will force him to idleness for several weeks. He was engaged in "trimming heads" when the knife slipped and found not a head but his hand.

Miss Pitts Brown, a daughter of Harry Brown, is back from a two weeks course at Lock Haven Normal and has been engaged to teach a winter term of school at Williamsport, Goshen township. She had a car.
